MAGILL, Sir Ivan

RAMC. Captain. QUB graduate. MO to the Irish Guards at the Battle of Loos in September 1915. Then at Base hospital Rouen. One of the outstanding anaesthetists of his time. After the war worked with thoe utstading Sir Harold Gilles at the Facial and Jaw injuries unit in Sidcup, Kent. He developed the technique of awake blind intubation using a single endotracheal tube which passed from the nose into the trachea and which allowed proper control of ventrilation. This was instead of passing the tube through the mouth and was vital in complex facial injuries. He also developed the Magill forceps, a new type of angulated forceps still in use today, to facilitate this nasotracheal intubation.

MAGILL, James

MARSHALL, Robert

RAMC. Major. President QUB Services Club 1941, 42, 43. Educated at MCB and QUB, obtaining first place in medicine in his year. QUB MB 1912, BCh DPH

1918, MD QUB 1921. FRCPI 1921. After graduation he held the office of resident medical officer at the Royal Victoria Hospital and later went to London, where he became resident medical officer at the National Hospital for Heart Diseases. Lieutenant RAMC Dec, 1914. Captain Dec, 1915. In France from 02/12/1914. Served in France with the 1st and 3rd Cavalry Divisions. After the war engaged in private general practice whilst holding the post of registrar in the RVH and that of assistant physician to the Ulster Hospital for Women and Children. Gradually his interests took shape and he paid particular regard to cardiology and diseases of children, although he never gave up his role as consulting physician. The Centenary Year of the Belfast Medical School coincided with his turn to give the opening address to students at the beginning of the winter session, and he took the opportunity to give them a truly masterly account of the school from its earliest days in Frederick Street. This work was followed in 1959 by his Scott-Heron Lecture on "The Story of the Ulster Hospital". At the visit of the BMA to Belfast in 1937 he made himself responsible for editing all the unsigned articles included in the 'Book of Belfast'. The loss of his only son, Robert, who qualified in medicine in 1939 and promptly joined the Army, unfortunately only to be killed in Burma after the fall of Singapore during the Second World War, was a grievous blow to him because between father and son there had existed a great understanding. Dr. and Mrs. Marshall generously bequeathed a room in the university medical library to their son's memory. Born 09/09/1889, Son of WJ Marshall JP and Bertha nee Shaw, Derryvolgie Ave., Belfast. Husband to Evelyn Mary, daughter of William Marshall, Bangor.

+McCORMACK, Campbell McNeill

RAMC. Major. MC and 2 Bars. MiD. Died 22/09/1918. Age 27. Educated initially at the Carr and Ballymacbrennan National Schools, he won a scholarship to Lisburn Intermediate School, subsequently Wallace High School, where he won exhibitions in the junior, middle and senior schools, and then an entrance scholarship of £30 to QUB to study medicine. After graduating MB in June 1914 and, having been in the OTC at Queens, (where he was the best shot in his Company and won four bronze medals for training), he joined the Reserve of Officers (RAMC) going to Aldershot at the end of June for preliminary training. On completion of this he expected to be able to return home to Drumbo for a short holiday but the outbreak of war intervened. Posted to Dublin for a short time, he subsequently embarked for France on the night of 07/08/1914 with the medical contingent of the Aldershot Division.

Heavily involved in the retreat from Mons, he “came to prominence for good work bravely performed at ... Hill 60.” Writing home afterwards, he commented that it was, “a miracle more of them did not get knocked out”. He was also mentioned in dispatches, “for gallant and distinguished conduct in the field” in Sir John French’s last dispatch.

He was promoted to Captain from 01/04/1915 (London Gazette of 23/07/1915).

He was awarded the MC in September 1916. The citation published in the London Gazette read, “For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during operations. He directed the stretcher-bearers under heavy shellfire with the greatest coolness and courage. He succeeded in entering a village which had been heavily shelled, and, with another captain, a sergeant and four men, collected the wounded into a dug-out and succeeded in getting them back later. He has frequently shown great courage.”

He was married to Ella Todd Warnock of Fernleigh, Endsleigh Drive, Belfast, in Drumbo Presbyterian Church on 12/09/1917. She was the only daughter of the late Rev. James Warnock, formerly minister of Drumbo and of Kroonstad, South Africa where he had gone for the sake of his health. One of the ministers officiating was the Rev. Joseph Cordner who may have been the father of James Cordner, who was KIA in April 1918. The best man was Hugh McCormack the bridegroom's brother who was later to have Campbell's death commemorated on his own headstone. The officers and men of 15 Field Ambulance gave them a silver salver.

Slightly wounded in late August/early September 1918, he was KIA in France on the 22/09/1918 two days after coming out of hospital and just over a year after his marriage. He was 27 years old and was serving in the 5th.(5) Field Ambulance RAMC. He is buried in Barastre(6) Communal cemetery, Pas de Calais, France grave 11.

Born 05/05/1891, he was the son of William McCormack, a farmer and Mrs. McCormack of Hillhall House, Lisburn, Co. Down, his death is also commemorated on his brother's (H.H. McCormack's) headstone in Drumbo Presbyterian church graveyard. He died on the 12/08/80.

Writing to his parents shortly after his death, Major F.R. Thornton (RAMC) wrote, "I think by this time you will have received news of Major McCormack's death yesterday morning. A shell hit the shelter in which he and Colonel Bradley were sleeping and both were killed at once. He was buried yesterday afternoon in the cemetery close by in the presence of all the men of his ambulance who could be spared, and detachments from the other ambulances of the division. The General commanding the Division and many other officers were present. At the special request of the men his body was carried to the grave by the N.C.O.'s of the unit. It is difficult for me to express to you the deep sympathy that I feel, as I realise what a terrible loss it must be to you all. We all feel it most deeply, as he was beloved by officers and men. Of his unselfishness and courage it is needless to speak, for the men would follow him anywhere, or do anything which he asked them to do. I wonder if you have any small photographs of him, I should, myself, so much like one and the other officers are asking for it; in addition if you could let us have a few, I know how deeply some of our N.C.O.'s and men of his section would appreciate them. With my very deepest condolence". Born 05/05/1891, Co. Down

On 15/11/ 1915, he was appointed to the Royal Naval Air Service (Russian Armoured Car Division) as a Petty Officer. He served in Russia under Commander Locker-Lampson before returning home to be commissioned to the Royal Garrison Artillery on 13/11/1916, where he served with the Brigade Head Quarter's staff in France. He subsequently transferred to the 53rd Squadron Royal Flying Corps, as an observer. Frederick was killed in action on 08/11/1917. A report received from the officer commanding the 10th Loyal North Lancashire Regiment stated that on 15th November: "when in the lines my unit found the bodies of 2 British airmen in "no-man's land", they were recovered and buried in the Northern end of Hollebeke Church. A chequebook and letters were found on one of the bodies which showed it to be that of 2nd Lt L W Middleton RFC". Frederick was born on 27/09/1897, the son of F W and Sara McCullough of Longford Villa, Antrim Road, Belfast, later of "Belgravia", Ulsterville Avenue, Belfast. His father was the chief engineer for the city of Belfast and president of the Institution of Water Engineers. Frederick's remains were re-interred in Voormezele Enclosure Number 3, Flanders, Belgium. RBAI WM, Fitzroy - PCI RH, ADM 188/580/10028

+McCURRY, Walter Tennyson

RAMC. Lieutenant. Attached 1st Btn Norfolk Regiment. MiD. Died 14/03/1915. Age 22. RBAI. QUB M.B., B.Ch., B.A.O. 1915. Member of OTC. He joined the Special Reserve of Officers in the RAMC. Mobilised 05/08/1914. Posted to serve on the medical staff of the 15th Field Ambulance, entering the war with them on 20th August. Walter took four days leave in the UK at Christmas then shortly after he returned to the front lines he was attached to the 1st Bn. Norfolk Regiment as their medical officer. In a letter to his father he wrote: "Above all things don't worry. If you keep bright and smiling it will do mother a lot of good. Don't be downhearted. My risks are very small compared with those of the fighting men, but I want to prepare you for this - I may soon be sent as medical officer to a regiment. This may mean more exposure, but the danger is not much increased. One, however, should look at these things not through narrow personal spectacles, but take a broader, patriotic view. You cannot make omelets without breaking eggs. You cannot have the prosperity and comfort that Britain now enjoys, and for which she has in the past shed blood, without losing, without losing lives. And so I come to my point - that instead of worrying about the whole skin of one's relatives at the front people at home should rather think of the ultimate result of this war, and be prepared, if necessary, to lose their friends." Walter was killed whilst tending to wounded when the battalion came under heavy shell fire. He was the eldest son of Joseph and Jessie Graham McCurry of Belfast Bank House, Shankill Rd., Belfast. Ramparts Cemetery, (Lille Gate), Ypres.

+McELNEY, Robert Gerald

RAMC. Captain. 77th. Field Ambulance. MC. Died 21/03/1918. Age 25. Campbell College. Entered QUB, with an entrance scholarship, and obtained fifth place in a year of keen competition at the Science Scholarship Examination. He became a prominent member of the OTC. In February 1912, he obtained the Royal Humane Society, for a deed of gallantry near Downpatrick. He was a competent swimmer, and held the bronze medal of the Royal Life Saving Society. He was also a keen horseman. In April 1913, he obtained a commission in the RAMC (SR), taking his training at Aldershot that year. Lieutenant RAMC April 1913, Captain Feb 1916. He graduated in medicine in July 1915, and was sent to France, joining the BEF on 28th September, he was attached to the 77th Field Ambulance.

He was awarded the Military Cross during the Battle of the Somme, "For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led stretcher parties and worked in the open under heavy fire continuously for thirty-four hours. He set a splendid example of courage and determination.” (London Gazette 11/12/1916). One of his superior officers wrote: “The feat that won him the Military Cross was a remarkably fine achievement. He had no fear. His courage and devotion to duty made him very popular, both with officers and men”. He was killed on the opening day of the great German offensive, near Bapaume. Letters from his superior officers spoke of his courage and the high order of his professional skill. One closely associated with him for 11 months in the unit wrote: “He had a record of steady and devoted service second to none, and his personal qualities were of such sterling value as to win the love and admiring regard of all.” Robert was the eldest son of the Rev. Robert McElney, M.A., and Mary Elizabeth McElney, The Manse, Downpatrick, Co. Down. He was born in the Manse, Saintfield on 20/09/1892. Grevillers British Cemetery, France.

McFADDEN, George Dixon Fisher

RNVR. Surgeon Probationer. Born Newtownstewart, 28/6/1892. One of nine children born to the Rev. Jackson McFadden and Mary L McFadden. Jackson McFadden, was Minister of Badoney Presbyterian Church from May 1881 until his death in May 1936.

In order that his family of five sons and four daughters received the best education possible, Jackson McFadden took a house in Melrose Street, Belfast, so that they could attend schools in Belfast. George McFadden was educated at Royal Belfast Academical Institution and the 1911 Ireland Census lists an 18-year-old GDF McFadden as the head of the household at 60 Melrose Street – the other listed occupants are two sisters (Mary, 17, and Evelyn, 15) and a brother (Kenneth, 13). In October 1911, he enrolled as a medical student at Queen’s University, Belfast, where he won a Hockey Blue and was a member of the Officers’ Training Corps from November 1913.

George McFadden’s elder brother, John, had also been a member of the Queen’s University Officers’ Training Corps between November 1908 and September 1911. He was already a qualified doctor at the start of the war and he enlisted in the Royal Army Medical Corps in October 1914, serving as a Captain attached to the 12th Battalion, Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers.

In February 1916, George McFadden interrupted his studies when he was appointed as a Probationary Surgeon, with the rank of Sub Lieutenant, RNVR. These appointments allowed small naval craft to have a medical student with clinical knowledge on the ship's roster. Following a preliminary period of training at the Royal Naval Hospital in Haslar (during which he contracted typhoid fever), McFadden was appointed to HMS Archer, an Acheron-class destroyer based in the Firth of Forth. In the spring of 1916, HMS Archer was transferred to the 3rd Battle Squadron, operating in the Mediterranean.

Whilst serving with HMS Archer in the North Sea, George McFadden had the terrifying experience of being washed overboard:

“I was lifted like a cork and carried on a wave out to sea. I could see the ship silhouetted against the horizon ... I thought, „This is the end, death cometh sooner or later, and the wardroom will be thinking in the morning that the doctor is having a long sleep.“ The next thing I remember was seeing a light in the stern of the ship and I realised that I must be closer to it. Managing to grab the sides, as the ship rolled over I managed finally to clamber on deck. I think that it was the backlash of the sea that carried me off the deck, which was my salvation; but I do not like to think or talk about the episode, though I shall never forget it.” - From “The Surgeon Probationers” by R. S. Allison.

The PCI RH entry records that George McFadden served with HMS Victory, a Shore Barracks Establishment, during the Great War.

After the war George McFadden completed his medical studies, graduating with Honours as a Bachelor of Medicine, Bachelor of Surgery and Bachelor of Obstetrics in 1919. He obtained his Masters in Surgery (with Gold Medal) in 1923 and became a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons in 1924. He developed an expertise in children's surgery when he was a resident surgical officer at the Great Ormond Street Hospital for Sick Children.

In 1927 he married Gasparina Dos Santos in Newberry, Berkshire. He returned to Northern Ireland to take up a position at the Ulster Hospital for Children and Women in Templemore Avenue, and was appointed as a surgeon at the Belfast Infirmary in 1939. He gained an international reputation for performing hare-lip and cleft-palate corrective surgery on children.

He was President of the Ulster Medical Society in 1956/57, at which time he was also Senior Surgeon at both the Belfast Infirmary and the Ulster Hospital for Children and Women.

George McFadden was a member of the Fitzroy Avenue Kirk Session in 1949 and remained at Fitzroy until his retirement to England, where he devoted himself to painting (a self portrait was presented to the Belfast City Hospital). Died 1891 aged 88, Windsor, Berkshire. Fitzroy Avenue Presbyterian Church WM and PCI RH. Badoney PCI RH.
