THE ULSTER DIVISION REVIEW.

Major-General Powell's Congratulations - Major-General C. H. Powell, C.B., commanding the Ulster Division, has issued the following order with reference to last Saturday's review and parade :-

The G.O.C. congratulates all ranks in the Division on their fine, soldierly appearance at the review on Saturday. He was much impressed with their behaviour on parade, and believes that they will show the same steadiness when they come under the enemy's fire.

General Powell has also written as follows to the Lord Mayor :-

Headquarters Ulster Division, Belfast May 10, 1915

My dear Lord Mayor - I wish to send you my grateful thanks for your very kind help during the pas week, which did so much to make the review of the Ulster Division so successful. Mr. Moneyppenny. Will you be good enough to let them know how very muck I appreciate their help ?

The Army Council has notified that in future the 36th (Ulster) Division Reserve Park, stationed in temporary barracks in Great George's Street, Belfast, will be known as the 36th Reserve Park.

10th BATTALION INNISKILLINGS.

Enthusiastic Welcome at Londonderry.

After nearly eight months' absence, during which they have been training at Finner Camp, Ballyshannon, the 10th Battalion Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers (Derry Volunteers) reached Londonderry City yesterday on their march to join their brigade at Randalstown, and were given a most enthusiastic reception.

On the previous night the battalion had bivouacked in the show grounds at Strabane. Reveille was sounded at 4 a.m., and the men set out at six o'clock for the Maiden City. They carry full service kit and equipment.

At Prehen the brass band of the 3rd Battalion Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, from Ebrington Barracks, met their comrades and played them to their joint encampment, the old polo field, Up to this the 10th battalion had been headed by their own rifles and drums, under Sergeant Drummer Matthews. The weather was dry when Strabane was left behind, but when half the day's march was over a thick haze developed into a drizzle, which ended in a mild downpour. This was the first rain experienced since the battalion left Finner on Saturday last.

Notwithstanding the rain the battalion march into the city in fine fettle, with Lieutenant-Colonel Ross Smyth, D.S.O., J.P.; Major Kinhard, and Captain Toker, adjutant, at their head, and proceeded, amid rousing cheers from the assembled crowds, through the streets elaborately bedecked with Union Jacks and other loyal emblems. The route taken was via Spencer Road, Clooney Terrace and Clooney Road. On reaching polo field the 3rd Inniskillings' band dropped out and the lead was taken by the battalion band; which in turn took up a position in the centre of the field and the men marched past to the stirring music of the "British Grenadiers" Subsequently that were dismissed and, owing to the bad weather, were accommodated in the hutments that have been erected here for military use. On all bands were heard favourable comments on the splendid condition and fine soldierly appearance of the men.

To-day a recruiting parade of the city will take place.

The German garrison in Crete under Major General Bentach surrenders

General Vlasov, commander of the anti-Bolshevist Russian Liberation Army is handed over to the Russians by the Americans and will be executed for treason in August, 1946.

Final attack on Monte Cassino

On this day in 1944 British, American, French, New Zealand, and South African forces mounted the last attack on the monastery of Monte Cassino.

Its capture a week later would eventually lead to the liberation of Italy. Fierce German counter-attacks are put in by the German defenders at Monte Cassino.

The log of the 38 th (IRISH) Brigade, records Brigadier Scott, at Presenzano south of Cassino:

"The Divisional Commander and I visited each battalion in turn on the morning of the 12th and talked to all the troops. He told everyone what our role was to be and explained the battle generally. He then retired out of earshot to give me a chance of saying a few words that I thought members of the Irish Brigade would like to hear before an all out party of this nature. Everyone was in excellent heart and there was a feeling of considerable confidence."

Lasting from 17th January 1944 until 19th May 1944, the battle of Monte Cassino lasted 127 days, involved almost a quarter of a million men, almost 2,000 planes and around 4,000 tanks.

The battle cost the allies 55,000 casualties including dead and wounded and when finally won, paved the way for the advance and capture of Rome.

The battle itself is often forgotten, overlooked by the events of D-Day, the destruction of the great Abbey and other events of the year.

It was a hard won victory and one which brought many nations together in for a common goal, one which involved many soldiers, both full time and reserve, of all services, Indian, New Zealander, Australian, American, South African, Canadian, Polish, British and more.

All fought hard and worked together to free Italy of fascism and help bring an end to the war.
